U.S. Retirement Partners Announces Addition of Retirement Resource Center
Microsite Offers Easy-To-Use Tools to Help Employers and Employees

Iselin, NJ, April 12, 2012 – U.S. Retirement Partners (USRP) announced today that it has introduced its Retirement Resource Center intended for use by USRP's employer and employee clients. USRP is a national network of benefits and retirement planning specialists serving the K-12 education market.

The web-based Retirement Resource Center microsite has easy-to-use tools to help employers and their employees learn more about retirement savings, manage personal finances, and explore college funding options. In addition, there are calculators, video seminars, and resource materials to help employees plan for the future. A link to this microsite can be found on the USRP public website, on various regional Partner Firm websites, and is also available as a free service for employers to add to their websites.

"We are very pleased that many of our Partner Firms are sharing these new tools with their employer and employee clients. Offering this valuable resource provides employees with an additional educational opportunity," said James F. Schlucter, Senior Vice President and National Director of Practice Management of USRP.

"Retirement planning involves many long-term decisions and should be done in the context of considering other ongoing financial needs. This site provides a variety of tools to help employees learn more about retirement savings, managing personal finances and investigating college funding options," said Mark M. Skinner, President and CEO of USRP.
