Adam Hensen joined U.S. Retirement & Benefits Partners in June 2023 as the Director of Financial Analytics & Underwriting. A distinguished leader in financial analytics and underwriting, Adam is a seasoned employee benefits financial strategy consultant, underwriter, and data expert known for his strategic acumen, genuine approach, and business intelligence expertise. With a Bachelor of Science in Mathematics and a Certificate in Actuarial Science from the University of North Texas, his proficiency in statistical analysis and data-driven insights has been instrumental in shaping comprehensive benefit strategies for key clients while leading teams of underwriters and financial consultants to do the same.

Having excelled in positions at esteemed organizations such as Brown & Brown, Adam has demonstrated a remarkable ability to leverage his multifaceted skill set to provide clients with in-depth analyses of complex data sets. He has a proven track record of implementing insightful benefits strategies derived from thorough assessments of medical, prescription, and worker compensation claims data.

Adam's collaborative approach has seen him effectively mentor and lead cross-functional teams, while his expertise in financial reporting and underwriting has contributed to successful negotiations and the development of underwriting standards of practice. With a solid technical background, Adam is adept at leveraging technology to generate comprehensive reports and analyses.

Adam continues to channel his passion for data-driven decision-making and strategic consulting, aiming to make a profound impact in clients' benefits offerings and the overall experience of members.
